The Salt Of The Earth

An old legend tells of an elderly gentleman who used to sit out by the well of his village, greeting weary travelers as they came through town.

When someone asked him, “What kind of people live here?” He answered everyone with the same question, “What kind of people lived in the last place you visited?”

If the traveler said that he had left a place where the people were happy, friendly, and satisfied, the old man would confidently say that the people in his village were much the same.

If the traveler complained that he had left a community where the people were always fighting, bad-tempered, and selfish, the old man would say, “Sadly, the people here are much the same.”

In other words, people react to us and treat us based on how we treat them. If you are unfriendly, that’s what you’ll get in return. If you pick a fight, most people will oblige you. The opposite is also true. If you want friendship and love, offer it first. If you want respect, give it first.

As Gandhi stepped aboard a train one day, one of his shoes slipped off and landed on the track. He was unable to retrieve it as the train was moving. To the amazement of his companions, Gandhi calmly took off his other shoe and threw it back along the track to land close to the first. Asked by a fellow passenger why he did so, Gandhi smiled, saying, “The poor man who finds the shoe lying on the track will now have a pair he can use.”

As the salt of the earth and the light of the world, good people should always influence people rather than be influenced by them. Remember: a bulldog can beat a skunk, but it is never worth it!

“Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid. Neither do men light a candle, and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven” (Matthew 5:14-16).

—Charles North

WHEN YOU THINK OF GIVING UP . . .

Remember the countless achievements that have been made by those who at one time had the same thought but resisted the temptation to throw in the towel. Elijah thought he was the only one left, but God showed him that he was not. Paul was discouraged at Corinth, but Jesus had many potential Christians there. A Commissioner of the U.S. Patent Office in 1895 proposed that Congress close the U.S. Patent Office because all of the great inventions had already been discovered. Whether you do something or whether you do nothing, you will still be criticized. The only choice we have is whether we will be opposed for doing good or for doing evil (1 Peter 3:16-17).
