The Daily Bible reading for April just concluded the book of Romans this week. Sometimes after reading a novel I want to go back and see if I read that book correctly because it didn't end like I thought it was supposed to. Paul ends Romans with a list of people that he is grateful for in many ways. He praises them for being faithful believers, spreading the Gospel and being a family to him. Most names we have never heard before and never heard afterward. This beautiful book to the church at Rome tells us of salvation and how to be blessed with it. It was true then as it is today. He ends his honor role Chapter 16 vs 16 with a glorious phrase "the churches of Christ salute you."

Mars Hill, I salute you.
Thomas
