A few years ago, one of our church families opened their home to an exchange student from Ukraine. He attended with them regularly and was almost always in the teen class I taught on Wednesday night. During our study of II Corinthians chapter 4 vs 7 I passed over it quickly and continued the study. When class was over, he came to me with a furrowed brow and asked in his thick Ukrainian accent "what is meaning message in clay jar?" A lot of things don't translate readily from one language to another he couldn't get past the idea of a literal jar and where are these jars today? In just a few minutes I could see the light of understanding come on. WE are the clay jars! Just as the man from Ethiopia told Phillip, he needed help in understanding what he was reading. Be a teacher. ~Thomas
